Hearing Care Counsellor

Ross Hart works for the Canadian Hearing Society as a Hearing Care Counsellor with people 55 and older who have acquired hearing loss, also known as being 'hard of hearing'. He has worked at this job in both Eastern Ontario, Simcoe and York Regions. He has a combined work experience of nearly 11 years with this organization. Previous experience in social services includes 20 plus years working to support people entering the workforce for the first time, as well as being part of a family business for several years.

This talk will explain Age and Noise related Hearing Loss. It will address the implications of Hearing Loss as we age and the realities people and their families face who experience this loss.

He will also provide an understanding of Hearing Aids from the users perspective and why people are so challenged by them.

Lastly, learn valuable solutions that will help people cope and even thrive by using the latest technology and education available.
