DANGEROUS WINTER WATER CONDITIONS

GENERAL TIPS

- Be suspicious; you can't tell the strength of the ice by its appearance
- Before you head onto ice, check reported conditions with a local marina operator or snowmobile club
- Avoid travelling on ice at night. Only clear, hard ice is recommended for travel. Keep away from unfamiliar/unknown ice
- If you must venture onto the ice, wear a thermal protection buoyant suit to increase your chances of survival if you fall through
- Before you leave shore, inform someone of your destination and expected return
- Assemble a small personal safety kit to carry with you, including a whistle, rope, ice pick and cell phone.

ALWAYS AVOID

- Thawed/recently frozen ice
- Slushy/rotten ice
- Ice near moving water
- Going on the ice alone

SELF-RESCUE TIPS

- Float on your stomach facing the shore
- Reach forward onto the ice shelf; do not push down on it
- Kick your legs to push your torso onto the ice
- Crawl/roll away from the hole
- If you can't climb out, float in the water and call for help
- Get medical help immediately

ASSISTING OTHERS

- Do not attempt to go on the ice
- Push or throw a stick, rope or floating aid to the victim
- Seek help fast. Call 911 for assistance
- Remember - Reach, Throw... but DO NOT GO!
